

National School Psychology Week (NSPW)

During the week of November 6-10, 2023 schools throughout the United States will celebrate National School Psychology Week (NSPW) to highlight the important work school psychologists and other educators do to help all students thrive. This year's theme is "Let's Grow Together," inspired by the importance of both personal and shared strengths in our growth as individuals and school communities in every season of life. The theme recognizes every aspect of growth, as fundamental to effective learning environments and to school psychologists' role in supporting student well-being and learning.

Let's Grow Together

The annual NASP National School Psychology Week poster can be used in many ways, from starting school-wide initiatives to having conversations with families about how to best support the growth and development of their children into thriving individuals. Regardless of how you use it, this poster can inspire all school personnel to help students thrive.

Adaptable Resources

We have developed these adaptable resources to help you reach out to families, educators, administrators, and other members of your school community to make them aware of your activities during National School Psychology Week and your work around the year to help schools and students thrive.

Recognize Others

These programs, available year round, are perfectly suited to incorporation in your National School Psychology Week activities. Use these programs to foster gratitude, recognize the positive impact of individual action, and encourage resilience.
